

References for Add-on Testing

- 1. The Royal College of Pathologists: November 2011
Guidance on consent for the processing and analysis of clinical samples following an initial consultation.
GMC. 2008. Consent:Patients and Doctors making decisions together

- 2. Thyroid function tests

2006 British Thyroid Association Guidelines for the use of Thyroid Function Tests

- 3. HbA1c levels

2009 NICE Guidelines: Type 2 Diabetes
2008 NICE guidelines for diabetes in pregnancy

- 4. Ferritin

2010 EASL Guidelines: HFE Haemochromatosis
2006 Best Practice in Primary care Pathology Guidelines

- 5. CRP

2001 Clinical Chemistry: Serial Measurements of C-Reactive Protein and Interleukin-6 in the Immediate Postnatal Period
2009 BMJ Guidelines: How to Use: C-reactive Protein
1995 Prospective study of daily measurement of C-reactive protein in serum of adults with neutropaenia

- 6. Vitamin D

2010 BMJ Best Practice Guidelines: Vitamin D deficiency
2008 NICE Guidelines for Chronic Kidney Disease

- 7. B12 and folate

CKS Guidelines: Anaemia- Vitamin B12 and Folate deficiency

- 8. Electrophoresis (serum and urine)

2010 UK Myeloma Forum Guidelines on the Diagnosis and Management of Multiple Myeloma

- 1. Reflective testing

- a. Paterson et al(2004) Reflective testing: how useful is this practice?J. Clin Pathol ,57: 273-275

- b. Srivastava R et al (2010) Reflex and reflective testing: efficiency and effectiveness of adding on laboratory tests
Ann.Clin.Biochem ,47 :223-227.
- c. D Darby et al (2006) Reflective testing-what do our users think?
Ann Clin Biochem 43: 361-368